About Red Mark

Red Mark Surface Coatings brings mineral finishes and decorative wall textures together in one collection.

Using this book

Start with colour and texture, then consider where the finish will go. Use the photographs as a visual guide. A physical sample lets you see the finish in the light of your own space.

COLLECTION / INTERIOR MOOD

Lime Wash

Soft shifts in tone give a plain wall movement while keeping the overall surface quiet.

What to look for

Look at the balance of light and dark movement across the wall. Compare a sample in daylight and under the lamps you use in the evening.

COLLECTION / TEXTURE

Dune Texture

A softly ridged surface with a directional pattern reminiscent of wind-shaped sand.

Choosing the direction

Notice how the ridges catch light from the side. Show us the wall and the position of nearby windows when discussing the pattern.

COLLECTION / PATTERN

Stencil Designs

A repeated motif adds ornamental detail to a wall through pattern and relief.

Choosing a motif

Consider the scale of the repeat beside furniture and door openings. A lower contrast pattern reads differently from one with a bold change of colour.

COLLECTION / EXTERIOR

Pebble Texture

Granular texture gives the surface a pronounced, tactile character.

Choosing the grain

Look at the mix of tones from close up, then step back to judge the wall as a whole. Request a physical sample to compare the actual grain.

APPLICATION / INTERIOR

Interior wall finishes

Use a mineral finish across a room for a continuous surface or on one wall to draw the eye.

Planning a room

Look at the finish alongside the flooring, joinery and fabrics. Compare it at different times of day before settling on a colour.

APPLICATION / EXTERIOR

Exterior finishes

Stone and pebble textures bring depth to facades, entrance walls and outdoor spaces.

Planning a facade

View your sample against the surrounding stonework, roof and paving. Tell us about the intended surface so we can discuss finish selection.

COLLECTION / REFLECTIVE SURFACES

Metallic finishes

A reflective finish changes in appearance as light moves across the wall.

Working with light

Compare a sample under warm and cool lighting. Side lighting can bring out surface movement while a front-facing light gives a different impression.
